

Annual Medical Symposium Set for November 17

Granada Hills Community Hospital (GHCH) will host its 27th Annual Medical Symposium at the Sheraton Universal Hotel in Universal City on Sunday, November 17, 1996. This year's event is titled "Challenges in Disease Prevention."

Sponsored in conjunction with the Hospital's Medical Staff, the Symposium honors Arno Roscher, M.D., Chief of Pathology and Director Emeritus of the Hospital's Continuing Medical Education Program.

The keynote luncheon speaker will be world renown cardiologist H. Jeremy C. Swan, M.D., Cedars-Sinai Medical Center, who is Chairman of the Committee on Cardiovascular Disease Prevention, American College of Cardiology. He will discuss "Prevention of Cardiovascular Disease: Expectations Great and Small."

Category 1 credits toward the CMA Certificate in Continuing Medical Education and the AMA Recognition Award will be offered for attending this Symposium. For more information, please contact the Medical Staff Office at (818) 831-6879.

Granada Hills Community Hospital
Medical Staff Focus
October 1996

aaroscher.com